

Taryn Re

Deriving influences from jazz artists such as Sarah Vaughan, Carmen McRae, and Ella Fitzgerald, Taryn Re has developed her own unique sound which she enjoys sharing in both her performing and teaching. She performs regularly with her big band (The Taryn Ré Big Band), small band, and duo in local L.A. jazz clubs such as The Baked Potato, the Blue Whale, and O.C. venues such as Campus Jax. Recently she has performed regularly at the new club, the Jazz Lounge, in San Diego, as well as the 1905 in Portland, OR. She has released several albums, including her self-titled "The Taryn Ré Big Band" album, a chord-less trio album, and several singer/songwriter albums. Although she loves performing, she loves teaching at the college level and encouraging students to pursue their own sound. Taryn currently teaches at Fullerton College, Chapman University, and El Camino College. Other schools include Azusa Pacific University, Golden West College, Cerritos College, Citrus College and the Orange County School of the Arts. She directs multiple vocal jazz ensembles, and teaches applied vocal jazz lessons at various schools. As of the Fall 2024, Taryn will direct the new Vocal Jazz Major at Cal State Fullerton, a new program under the existing Jazz and Commercial Music Major led by Bill Cunliffe and Rodolfo Zuniga.
